Alladi Krishnaswami Iyyer, is considered to be synonym of the Indian Constitution as he was one of the principal architects of the Constitution of India. His achievements as a legal brain are worth being explored as he was the one, born & brought up in poverty and adversity but rose to the heights of professional success and prosperity.

Born on 14.5.1883 in village Pudur of pre-independence Indian Madras state, now in Andhra Pradesh, Alladi Iyyer was educated and brought up on Charity. As a student, he was of extraordinary caliber in school & college both. He obtained his B.A. degree from Madras Christian College and then graduated further in law from Madras Law College. He joined the Bar in 1906 and took his legal training from senior advocate Shri P.R. Sundara Iyyer, whose chamber was regarded by him as a Gurukul. In the beginning of his legal career, he could not afford any motor transport and had to depend on horse-carriage with jumps & bumps particularly when the tonga driver whipped the horse to run fast. The backlashes were silently suffered by him while sitting on the rear seat. As he grew in practice he started going by train. Very soon he picked up his legal practice and constructed a palatial bungalow on Luz Church road in Madras, now Chennai by utilizing all his savings till then, had his own vehicle and the Judges & lawyers started recognizing him as the tide turning fortunes for him. His rise in profession was meteoric. He had a remarkable accurate memory. The textbooks & the law reports he read were retained by him in his memory with fine precision. Bestowed with unique talent and retentive memory, his arguments easily impressed the Judges and Lawyers.

From various quarters including Mr. V.R. Krishnan Iyer (subsequently a judge of Kerala High Court & Supreme Court) himself a brilliant advocate, used to come to hear the style of his arguments. With such fabulous developments, his success rate in litigation excelled speedily and everything he touched turned into gold. He was every inch a lawyer not in the contentious type but professional and philosophic, records Mr. V. Sudhish Pai advocate in his book "Legends in law".

Not once but many a times, Alladi Ayyar turned down offers to become a High Court Judge. He however very successfully served Madras State as Advocate General for 16 years (1928-1944). His greatest contribution was in the drafting of our Constitution. We as a nation will always remain indebted to his remarkable role in the making of the Constitution of India. He had vast knowledge of the Constitution of Great Britain and United States besides many other countries. K.M. Munshi, another member of the Constitution drafting committee applauded the role of Alladi as combative with massive legal knowledge and photographic memory. Sir Maurice Gwyer, the Chief Justice of India observed that the logical

Guest Lecture on State Recognition: Special reference to Taiwan's Political Status (2nd April 2022)

A guest lecture was organized in DME Law School on 2nd April 2022 at 11:00 AM on Zoom Platform on the topic 'State Recognition: Special Reference to Taiwan's Political Status'. The lecture was delivered by Dr. Sana Hashmi, Visiting Fellow at Taiwan-Asia Exchange Foundation (TAEF)

Dr.Sana Hashmi remarked that Taiwan has only been recognized as a sovereign state by 14 countries and all other countries recognize China while considering Taiwan as a part of China. She mentioned US Policy of Strategic Ambiguity regarding Taiwan. She further spoke about China's One China Principle and the countries to follow the One China Policy. This has led to many countries only recognizing China. Other topics discussed in the lecture were the 1992 Consensus, India's stance on the status of recognition of Taiwan.

Quo Ante, the possibility of China waging a war on Taiwan and the steps the other countries might take in such a situation, the removal of Taiwan from WHO, and the support earned by Taiwan in the past two years while fighting the pandemic. There was an interactive session after the lecture. The event ended with vote of thanks by Ms. Sreedurga, Assistant Professor, DME Law School.

He discussed the significant changes to the Code of Civil Procedure made by the Amendment Acts of 1999 and 2002. What were the significant revisions to the Code of Civil Procedure, which is almost a century old? Despite the fact that various adjustments were made, he stated that there are a few key amendments that every lawyer should be aware of. He discussed the 1976, 1999, and 2002 Acts. He described how the Acts of 1976, 1999, and 2002 are regarded substantial revisions, and how the problems in the amendments prompted protests and boycotts in India. He also described how the revisions affected other parts, such as Sections 89 and 26. He finished by discussing the notion of registration, which was also introduced as a result of the revisions, and how it might be useful. He finished by discussing the notion of registration, which was also introduced as a result of the modifications, and how it is Advantageous. We thank our honourable chief guest for taking time out of his busy schedule to speak with us, as well as our college for hosting such a beneficial webinar that presented very fundamental knowledge. Very basic knowledge with more advanced insights will help us improve our talents and our learning.

A Webinar on CRIMINAL APPEALS: GENERAL PRINCIPLES FOR ADVOCACY

Justice A. Hariprasad Former Judge, Kerala High court and director of Kerala judicial academy was invited to join a webinar on CRIMINAL APPEALS: GENERAL PRINCIPLES FOR ADVOCACY; Organised by Delhi Metropolitan Education on 3rd April 2022.

He had modulated his presentation to suit the requirements of lawyers both prosecutors and defence lawyers.

He discussed Chapter 29 of CRPC and dealt in detail with sections 372 to 394 which are the provisions relating to criminal appeals.

It was said by him, Every litigation should end in the 1st quarter; the legal system is itself aware of the fact that there can be mistakes in the trial court, so there must be another forum for rectification of the districts, so after every case the aggrieved party should get an opportunity to complain before a higher court.

Whether civil appeal or criminal appeal, it is the creation of a statute, It is not a fundamental right nor a natural right it is Statutory right.

In the context of CPC it has been settled by earliest announcement by Privy Council in 1923; where it is stated that appeal is creation of a statute it is not western rights in any party likewise none of the constitution enable a party to file an appeal against a trial court judgement whether civil or criminal. Further he gave a brief on Cognate offense, For example; section 354

IPC, Outraging the modesty, if women's private parts are touched by a person it is Outraging the modesty but in the case of rape also such incident is included but rape is an aggravated for of this so when you do a act, and you are charged for larger offense, lesser offense spells into insignificance.

Visit To The National Museum & Modern Art Gallery (May 19, 2022)

On the 19th of May 2022, an educational excursion to the National Museum was scheduled for all first year students of Delhi Metropolitan Education as part of their History PSDA (Personal Skills Development Assessment). For all students, this trip was a fantastic experience, especially because it was their first trip as college students. A group of 115 students accompanied by four faculty members Ms. Srishty Tawakley, Ms. Surbhi Arora, Ms. Navjot Suri, and Dr. Smita Gupta visited the museum.

Students were to assemble in the college premises & from there they were taken to the museum in buses arranged by the college. Snacks & drinks were served to students on their way to the National Museum.

Everyone reached the national museum, in New Delhi around 11:30 PM. A guided tour was arranged in which students were divided into four groups headed by the museum staff & one of the teachers. It was a fantastic learning experience since it provided a wealth of knowledge about how people used to live in the past and how efficiently they worked to make a living.

Everyone got the opportunity to see the antic ornaments like makeup kits, high hill sandals, and bottles of perfume which were made up of jade and elephant tusks, all belonging to ancient times. Everyone experienced the natural canvas painting made up of natural colours and the most expensive painting of the Mughal empire, whose worth was more than the cost of the Taj Mahal. There were varieties of paintings belonging to different administrations like the Rajputana Dynasty and the Mughal administration. Students got the opportunity to know about the lifestyle of Buddha and see some of his relics. Special mention must be made to the gallery of an ancient period where everyone saw the 'nav grah' or nine planets according to the Hindu belief system in the form of monuments. Also, the spectacular remains of monuments of the Gupta administration and the coins from the time of Samudra Gupta and Mughal administration are worth mentioning. Students could correlate these with the history taught in the classroom. In the end, students gathered for a group photo session in the National Museum which would remind them of their visit to the museum in the times to come.

Students next proceeded to the Modern Art Gallery where artists craftsmen from all around India had come to sell their products. A variety of fabric materials from several states of India could be noticed there. The glory of Indian textiles & crafts which had somehow lost importance to the machine-made goods was restated. Students felt proud with the rich heritage of India.

This visit to the National Museum the crafts museum indeed provided students with a wholesome learning experience. They were surely able to correlate outdoor learning with classroom learning, providing better insights to them on various historical topics.

arguments & profound legal knowledge of Alladi Iyyar were among the happiest memories of the Supreme Court .

Mr. Justice Hidaytullah, Chief Justice of Supreme Court said that Alladi was always thoroughly prepared with his brief, ready to answer every question and these traits of his with deep study of law were the secrets of his success. In his autobiography, "My Own Boswell" Hidaytullah observed "He (Alladi) was considered perhaps the greatest constitutional lawyer of his times in the country. Mr. Justice Venkat Subba Rao, CJI (of Golak Nath's fame) said his industrious and pains taking efforts fetched him the mastery of law. Mr. Justice Patanjali Shastri, Judge, Supreme Court , as in charge library of Supreme Court (later C.J.I.) used to take Alladi's advice while purchasing books for Supreme Court Library and the books so selected are still prize possession for the prestigious Supreme Court Atheneum. To Alladi ,the books were a tool to a lawyer's professional trade.

When disputes erupted between first President Dr. Rajendra Prasad & Prime Minister Pt. Jawahar Lal Nehru about the former's power, the matter was referred to Alladi Iyyar & his opinion was given weight when he clearly conveyed that the President had no sphere when he could function without advice of his ministers. Dr. Ambedkar, who was Law Minister then shared his views.

The then Attorney General M.C. Setalvad was of the view that Alladi earned laurels in all branches of Law but perhaps he loved no field of Law better than that of constitutional law. To Justice N. Rajagopala Iyyengar, Alladi was a blend of exceptional ability and overflowing goodness.

The greatman, Alladi believed in charity & donations. He made huge donations to Ramkrishna Mission students home, financially helped his relatives, friends and needy who came and asked for his help ; gifted a house to his cook Krishna Iyyar, whose Rasam, he & his friends including Patanjali Shastri & DR. Ambedkar were fond of.

Alladi, universally known figure of his times was not physically sound. His short height and weak and frail personality did not match his colossal knowledge and wide readings. He however believed in simple life and high thinking. Once when he was relaxing on verandah at home, a client from country side came to consult him about his case. The visitor did not believe that the man taking rest in simple and homely attire was Alladi. He was only convinced when son Alladi Kuppaswami , who later rose to be the Chief Justice, persuaded him to believe that indeed the person, he was talking to was Alladi Krishna Iyyar himself. Feeling utterly embarrassed, the client apologized and prostrated before Alladi Krishna Iyyar.

Once more, in a similar incident, Alladi Iyyar dressed in a simple dhoti and Shirt visited the office of Sub-Registrar for registration of a personal deed and occupied the chair. The sub registrar was furious at the visitor and asked him to get up as that chair was meant for the great Lawyer Alladi Krishna Iyyar and on learning that the visitor himself was Alladi, the Sub-Registrar was thoroughly abashed, afraid and apologetic.

The stories of poverty converting into prosperity may bring two kinds of feelings in a person – one, that may make him vain and conscious of his achievements in life and the other, it may make him humble and realize the lot of those who are not able to fight their way in life. The noble soul of Alladi Krishna Swami Iyyar ardently believed in the latter. (Courtsey, 'legends in Law' by V. Sudhish Pai Advocate).
